In the summer of 1947, Everett Kircher headed north from Detroit with a vision for the future of skiing in Michigan. He found what he was looking for: a ledge climbing to 1,150 feet above sea level with more than 500 feet of skiable vertical. Where Everett saw potential, its owner, Senator William Pearson saw folly: "Anyone damn-fool enough to want to build a ski hill, well...I'll give you the property." Everett purchased the 40 acres for just $1. Michigan skiing would never be the same.

Rum

Rusted Crow Davey Jones Rum

Robust but smooth classic white rum that is perfectly refreshing.

Dearborn Heights
